PROJECT LAND 154 PHASE 4 - ROUTE CLEARANCE CAPABILITY

JSD/RFI/9645/129 APR

- Request for Information - Capability Acquisition and Sustainment Group

The Joint Counter Improvised Explosive Device (JCIED) capability Project LAND 154 Phase 4 combines the former scope of Land 154 Phase 2 with Land 154 Phase 3B. Included within the Phase 4 project scope will be IED Neutralisation and Exploitation, and Route Clearance capabilities.

This RFI seeks information on technologies and services that may be able to contribute towards the next generation of Route Clearance capability, which is currently provided by the HUSKY/HMEE vehicles and mission systems procured under Project LAND 154 Phase 3A NINGAUI.

Defence understands that industry has a range of developmental and/or Off The Shelf IED detection and classification technologies and services that may be applicable to the Australian Defence Force (ADF) Route Clearance capability, either individually or as part of a system of systems. Defence is also interested in exploring opportunities to co-operate on applicable Route Clearance development programs with other nations and/or industry partners.

WEARABLE ASSISTIVE TECHNOLOGIES

8 MAY

- Expression of Interest - Defence Science and Technology

DST is seeking Expressions of Interest (EOI) for innovative proposals of future focussed research that can meaningfully address one or more of the ADF's assistive technologies priorities. The invitation to submit against the EOI is limited to Australian universities who are signatories of the Defence Science Partnering (DSP) Deed.

Based on a potential investment of up to $600k, proposers will be asked to detail:

- How funds would be allocated (PhD, Post Doc, Undergraduate, industry engagement, capital, consumables, etc.) in order to deliver the study's ADF's focused outcomes over a three year timeframe
- A commitment to build a true partnership through the appointment of an academic chair (0.1FTE) to the HPRnet and the investment of university resources to maximise outcomes for Defence.

The preferred university partner will have strong biomechanics expertise and facilities to measure the kinetics and kinematics of human gait along with cardiorespiratory responses, muscle activity and interface pressure distribution. Engineering expertise within the university (or through a university-to-university / university-to-industry collaboration) is also required in order to translate human factors data into the design optimisation of the wearable assistive technologies.

There is an expectation that the program will lead to the establishment of a substantial national capability in wearable assistive technologies that provides sustained benefit to Defence and other organisations (emergency services, law enforcement agencies and the private sector) over the long term. It is expected that both parties will benefit greatly from extant knowledge, expertise and reach-back capacity offered by the other in a true collaborative relationship.

Closing Date: 4:30 PM Wednesday 8 May 2019
