

THE CENTENARY OF THE ROYAL AUSTRALIAN AIR FORCE

This special edition of ADM will mark the centenary of the Royal Australian Air Force. Our coverage will include an in-depth history of the RAAF, from its beginnings after the First World War right through to today. This will be accompanied by a special episode of the ADM Podcast as well as a historical photo feature of Australian air power.

In this edition we will also look in detail at today's RAAF: the new F-35 capability; force multipliers such as KC-30As and Wedgetails; training in the 21st century; enabling mobility; space domain awareness (including the formation of US Space Command); and Air 6500. In addition, this edition will include our annual C4ISR coverage with a specific focus on informed decision making through ISR, and continues our support for the MilCIS conference and trade show, 16-18 November.

A second feature set will look towards the role of airpower in Australia's national strategy over the next few decades, and will place the RAAF's airpower in a regional context.

Chief of Air Force Air Marshal Mel Hupfeld will feature in this edition's From the Source interview.
